Citrus College Supports Proposition 1D

Contributed by the Citrus College Board of Trustees

California's schools, community colleges, and public universities are facing a tremendous need for classroom construction, restoration and earthquake retrofitting. Enrollment growth and new technologies place ever-increasing demands on aging facilities.

Proposition 1D would build nearly 10,000 new classrooms and renovate 31,000 more. It would provide modern facilities for science, technology and career education. Proposition 1D is not a tax, but will be paid for from the state's general fund. It has strict accountability measures and makes misuse of funds a crime.

Citrus College is currently partnering with our local school districts to help them prepare their students for college success. Proposition 1D will partially fund a new Student Services Building for Citrus College, which will house such vital services as counseling, admissions and financial aid, to assist students as they transition to college and work to achieve their dreams.

More than $35 billion per year is contributed to California's economy through our three systems of higher education. Citrus College supports Proposition 1D. It will ensure our educational institutions have the facilities necessary to sustain our economy and quality of life.

New Director of Institutional Research Hired

South Pasadena resident Dr. Lan Hao has been named the new Director of Institutional Research at Citrus College. Hao comes to Citrus College from Los Angeles Trade Technical College, where she worked as an institutional researcher for nearly a year. She has also worked at the University of Southern California as a research assistant. In addition, Hao worked as a project specialist at the Foreign Affairs Office at Tsinghua University in Beijing before coming to the United States. Hao, who holds a Ph.D. in higher education from the University of Southern California, will have a variety of duties in her new position.

"I am responsible for institutional research, which includes the development and dissemination of analytical data related to academic, student, administrative, and development programs," she said. "I am also responsible for the development and dissemination of data supportive of strategic planning, accreditation, enrollment trends, and required state and federal reports, etc." The married mother of one officially joined the Citrus College family on October 18.

Veterans Day Celebration

Join Citrus College in honoring the men and women who have honorably served in our nation's military. In observance of Veterans Day, the campus will host a special program to thank veterans and their families for the sacrifices they have made for our country.

"A Salute to Veterans" will be held on Thursday, November 9 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Citrus College Campus Center Quad. The program will include the singing of the national anthem, a color guard presentation, 21-gun salute by a rifle team, the playing of "Taps" by a military bugler, and a keynote address by Juventino Gomez, a veteran and senior deputy for L.A. County Supervisor Michael Antonovich.

As part of the celebration, a World War II jeep, a World War II command car, and a United States Army Humvee will also be on display. Refreshments, courtesy of the Citrus College Foundation, will be served.

For more information about "A Salute to Veterans" or the Citrus College Veteran's Fund, contact Dr. Bruce Solheim at (626) 852-8096.

Dia De Los Muertos Event

Despite its ominous-sounding translation, Dia De Los Muertos (or Day of the Dead) is actually a celebratory occasion. Now, Citrus College is joining the festivities.

This ancient holiday, during which Mexican families remember their deceased loved ones and celebrate the continuity of life, will be observed on campus Thursday, November 2 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. outside of the Hayden Memorial Library.

"It is not a morbid occasion but a celebration of life," said Martha McDonald, director of Citrus College's Extended Opportunities Programs and Services (EOP&S) and CalWORKs departments, and chair of the college's Latina Leadership Network (LLN). "Citrus is holding this event because it helps promote the importance of learning, appreciating, and enjoying the multicultural world in which we live."

As part of the celebration, there will be a performance by Mariachi de Azusa, a historical overview of the holiday, and examples of family altar and an art exhibit will be on display. Tamales and pan dulce will be available for purchase. For more information, call (626) 914-8556.
