CCSSE and CCFSSSE Return to Citrus College

DID YOU KNOW...

In a typical seven-day week, Citrus College students spend approximately six to 10 hours preparing for class (studying, reading, writing, rehearsing, homework, or other activities related to their program)? Our students' study time is higher than that of students at the comparative CCSSE colleges. This information was learned as a result of the Community College Survey of Student Engagement (CCCSE). This important study is a valuable tool in understanding who our students are. All faculty are invited to take the 2012 CCFSSSE Survey and to contribute their front-line perspectives on student engagement. The Office of Institutional Research will be administering this survey for the fourth time. The exact dates will be announced after spring break into early May. If you are a faculty member, one of your classes may be chosen to complete the survey. The data obtained is crucial to the college's planning so your meaningful participation is both needed and appreciated.

Citrus College Athletics

Kudos to the men's basketball team for another great season. Although Citrus College lost to Fresno City College in the CCCAA Final Four on March 10, they still have much to celebrate. They ranked No. 1 in Southern California throughout the year and amassed a 28-2 record while clinching their 4th WSC South Title in five years.
