Dear Colleagues and Community Partners:

It is with enthusiasm and high expectation that I present to you the Citrus College Strategic Plan: 2016-2021. It is an exciting and ambitious plan that will guide the work of the institution for the next five years, taking Citrus College to the next level of achievement and success as we confront the challenges and seize the opportunities that are inherent in higher education.

A broad spectrum of dedicated members of the Citrus College community, representing all college constituent groups, came together to form the Strategic Planning Work Group (SPWG). Their sole purpose was to develop a five-year strategic plan for the college—one that would be worthy of the high goals and expectations we set for ourselves, and is grounded on relevant data and an accurate assessment of the communities and students we serve. This 15-month planning process began in spring 2015 and brought to fruition the plan you see before you.

As a starting point and to better understand what had been accomplished in the college’s 2011-2016 Strategic Plan, the SPWG carefully reviewed that plan’s four progress reports. The SPWG then kicked off the fall 2015 semester with a very comprehensive environmental scan and data analysis of the college. They reviewed a wide range of documents covering such topics as the external environment, local factors, institutional data on student achievement, and many others. Approximately 60 reports and documents were reviewed, and 33 individual data summary reports were produced.

First the SPWG delved into the question, “Who are our students?” Examining data on our students was one of the most important elements of the process. Next, the group did a SWOT analysis to examine the college’s internal Strengths and Weaknesses and external Opportunities and Threats. They also reviewed the college’s current mission statement and the Accrediting Commission for Community and Junior Colleges’ Standard 1: Mission, Academic Quality and Institutional Effectiveness, and Integrity.

A viable strategic plan implements the college mission and must be capable of driving all institutional planning, including the expenditure of college resources and capital. With the benefit of extensive research and data, two drafts of a new mission statement were developed and sent out for comments to the internal and external communities and college stakeholders. From the feedback received, a new mission statement was selected which affirms the college’s educational purpose; what the college intends to do; and its commitment to student learning.

A strategic plan requires a goal to define what the college wants to accomplish in support of its mission over the five years of the plan. With this in mind, one overarching institutional goal for the new strategic plan has been developed: “Increase Student Success and Completion.” To measure how well the college is progressing toward accomplishing this goal, 18 collegewide measurable objectives were created and will be assessed annually.

Finally, 11 key focus areas were developed with specific strategies intended to guide the development of college activities supporting the strategic plan. These strategies and related activities will make up the Annual Implementation Plans developed for each year of the strategic plan.

Throughout the yearlong development process, the SPWG solicited feedback from the college community—through presentations at board meetings, flex day activities, collegewide surveys, and group discussions within various departments of the college. It has been a unique opportunity to listen to and learn from one another, build relationships, and gain a deeper understanding of the institution as a whole. I am very proud of the result of this tremendous collegewide effort.

Citrus College is destined for greatness, today and far into the future. I base this not solely on the plans and goals in this newest strategic plan, but also on our tremendous accomplishments of the past. We are a college community of planners, doers and high achievers, who are collectively dedicated to student success and college completion. The Citrus College Strategic Plan: 2016-2021 will guide our efforts as we shape the future of the institution and the lives and futures of thousands of Citrus College students in the years to come.

Sincerely,

Geraldine M. Perri, Ph.D.
Superintendent/President
