A College of Completion

Citrus College: A College of Completion is an initiative designed to encourage and support students as they endeavor to complete their educations, transfer to baccalaureate degree programs and enter the career fields of their choice. This collegewide effort is a response to a 2009 challenge from the White House for the nation's community colleges to produce an additional 8 million college graduates by 2020.

“The College of Completion campaign enables us to publicly declare our commitment to the academic achievement of our student body and it puts college completion front and center of our priorities.”
